Altimetric profile

Min elevation 1441 m Max elevation 1530 m

From the Frutaz square, follow the signs for 'Verney playground' initially between the houses and then come out onto a wide path. You can immediately see the pump track just below you. Follow the well-marked path that descends towards the hamlet of Verney. In a few minutes, you will reach the play area. From here, you can either go straight back or take a nice loop. From the hamlet of Verney, in fact, it is possible to take a very clear track that leads to the hamlet of Ronc Dessous in a few minutes. From here, continue towards Ronc Dessus. Just before reaching the hamlet, turn right onto a track that leads back to the Frutaz square.

If, on the other hand, you want to avoid the steeper, stepped section of the path to Verney, it is advisable to join the SR at the height of the church.

Pump track (D)

Torgnon is a mountain biker's paradise, and of course it couldn't be without a pump track to entertain even the youngest among jumps, parabolas and wheelies! Just a few minutes from the town centre, it is very easy to reach and is located next to a playground, in short, fun is guaranteed!

Wide forest track to Ronc (E)

The hamlets of Ronc Dessous and Dessus are worth a visit: a small cluster of houses bordering the forest and surrounded by green meadows. This comfortable track will take you on a pleasant and relaxing walk or bike ride.

Panoramic view (F)

Torgnon is certainly known for its privileged location, on the right flank of the Matterhorn valley and well elevated with respect to the central valley. Its particular morphology allows, thus, to always enjoy breathtaking views and idyllic glimpses.
